

DE COUBERTIN SAYS EUROPE SHOULD NOT MONOPOLIZE THE OLYMPIC GAMES

Lausanne, Dec. 10.—(By the A. P.)—Baron Pierre de Coubertin, founder of the Olympic games and president of the International Olympic committee, at a reception he gave in honor of the delegates to the Near East peace conference said he did not believe Europe had the right any longer to monopolize the Olympic games.

"There is something astounding in the way we on this side constantly ask the Americans to come to us, without facing the possibility of ever going to them," he declared. "It will be the international Olympic committee's duty to make the Olympics henceforth a much more American affair than ever before. Then we must think of our numerous friends and followers in far eastern lands, South America and African interests also have to be taken into consideration."

"Such a movement cannot be governed on a single center plan," he said. "The Paris games of 1924, it is not our business to criticize the way they were prepared. Each city, when once it is chosen as the seat of coming games, should be allowed to act freely in accordance with its methods and spirit. We feel confident that Paris finally will do its best and prove worthy of the occasion."

"The right of Germans to compete at Olympic games stands above discussion. Olympics are based on the rule that all the games are for all the nations. The International Olympic committee, in my opinion, cannot fail to elect very soon new German members to it."

ST. PETERSBURG WINTER MECCA OF THE SPORTING WORLD

(Special to the Bulletin)

St. Petersburg, Florida, Dec. 10.—Throughout the northern states, Dame Nature has placed her ban on practically all forms of outdoor sports popular in the summer months, in the form of heavy white snow blankets and sheets of ice. But that condition does not exist here where the branch of outdoor recreation is indulged in the winter season by thousands of visitors gathered from all sections of the United States.

"The city's warm climate annually attracts hundreds of golfers, the biggest majority hailing from Philadelphia, Boston, Detroit and Chicago. It attracts horse and auto devotees of the grand old game from the four points of the compass, one sport that has more than 1500 followers in the 'Sunshine City'."

For the golfers, there are three excellent greens, two 18 holes and one nine holes.

Perhaps no where else in the nation are there as many lawn bowlers devotees of an old Scotch game as those who gather here at the flag end of every year. The game is much like American bowls and played on alleys just as long. The bowling ball, however, is flat on two sides and curved at an angle 14 feet away on a lane that is 14 feet wide. There are 600 members in the Mirror Lake Club, most of them coming from Canada and England.

Rouge is an abbreviated form of croquet played on marble and clay courts with sawed off mallets and enlarged balls. The wickets are barely high enough for the players to crawl through. Annual tournaments in which America's best compete are held in February about the same time, the "harryard golfers" swing into the winter competition.

St. Petersburg has thirty municipal tennis courts for its winter guests and they are constantly in use. The city is almost entirely surrounded by bathing beaches where hummer take advantage of the warm climate to bathe in the gulf and bay waters. Swimming contests are held every week and regattas featuring yachting and power boat events are held every month.

Checker, chess and domino tables are provided in Williams Park where scores of older visitors delight to play in a game not so strenuous as others.

HORSES STILL HAVE PLACE IN THIS AGE

Horses used in business are still a vital factor in American commercial life. This was proved by the surprising fact that horses in the surprising classes were one of the outstanding features of all the national horse shows this fall. They were a great success in the National Horse Show in New York city, as well as the International Live Stock Exposition and the International Horse Show held recently in Chicago. Their numbers attracted much attention at the American Royal Live Stock Exposition in Kansas City, held in the Union Stock Yards.

More than 80 teams that have been in regular use on the streets of Chicago and other western cities, were shown in the classes provided for such entries at the International Show in Chicago. Cartage companies, dairy companies, bakeries, laundries, large newspapers and news companies, and one of the largest express companies were prominently represented, either in the wagon or heavy draft classes. Such entries have not been so definite a part of the fall shows for a number of years. In New York the crowded entries only served to emphasize the fact that this city has still more than 65,000 horses in actual use on its city streets every day of the year and that their number is steadily increasing in short haul or house to house delivery work within the twenty mile zone.

The Horse association of America does not anticipate that the horse will return to its former numbers on city streets but it does prophesy that the proportion of horses used in business in cities and towns will continue to steadily increase and that their use will keep step with the return of better business. The stock yards at Atlanta, Ga., Port Worth, San Antonio, Texas, Memphis, Tenn., and Montgomery, Ala., all show a decided recent increase in horse and mule business.

DETROIT FANDOM SET ON 1923 PENNANT

Detroit, Dec. 10.—(By the A. P.)—Detroit baseball fandom, which loyally has supported the Detroit Tigers whether they were "up" or "down" has set its heart on an American league pennant for 1923.

"The Tigers coming from the cellar position to third place in the 1922 race, are expected by the fans to be stronger in 1923 than they were this year. Frank Xavin, president of the club, believes that such should be the case."

Poor pitching has been the downfall of the Tigers for several years, in the opinion of observers. Next season, Detroit will start with the best string of hurlers of which the local outfit has boasted in a number of years. In speaking of his team's prospects, Mr. Xavin said:

"We should have the best pitching staff in the history of the club. Rip Collins, whom we obtained from Boston for Howard Ehmke and other players will give us help where we need it. We have also obtained, out nearly the entire season, due to injuries, undoubtedly will deliver, Herman Pilleto, one of the leading pitchers in 1922, and who with Johnson was obtained from the Pacific Coast League, will, with Collins head our hurling staff. It is possible that we will make one or two deals this winter that will give us even greater strength."

The team will be strengthened at second base by the addition of Del Pratt. Blue is one of the best first basemen in the game and Rigney, with whom we will in the market, is already considered one of the best shortstops. At third, we have Haney and Jones, excellent fielders. Jones a left handed batsman, can alternate with Haney, a right hander.

"In Bassler, we have a great catcher, and Woodall is close behind him. The ability of the Detroit outfield is too well known to need comment."

"The club will, even break, should do better next season than in 1922, when we finished third."

EVENING OF SPORTS AT STATE ARMORY TONIGHT

Battery B will put on an evening of sports at the state armory this Monday evening, to which the public is invited and no admission will be charged. Early in the evening there will be an exhibition of handball demonstrated by an expert from New London, to which the battery boys will give instruction in this game.

Following the handball exhibition there will be a basketball game between the Battery B five and the team from Battery A of New London. There is keen rivalry between these two service teams and the game should be well worth seeing. The Battery has a snappy little quintet that should be able to clean up anything that the Whalers can produce.

After the basketball game the Battery indoor baseball team will clash with the Nuggets team in the second game of the series. The Nuggets have one game to their credit and are confident of bringing home the bacon in this game. The Nuggets have a stronger team than the one that trimmed the Battery a few days ago. Madden is in the best of condition to do the hurrying for his squad. He will be opposed by "Stew" Wilson who has made quite a name for himself during the past few weeks.

SUPPORT FOR MENDEL

Views on Coaching

Clarence W. Mendel, chairman of the Yale Athletic Board of Control, is not alone in believing that coaching from the sidelines must be further extended to the end that football be a test of what one team can do against another team and not what one coach can do against another coach.

Dr. H. A. Garfield, president of Williams college, in reply to an inquiry as to his views on this question, that he was in full sympathy with the sentiments attributed to Mr. Mendel and emphasized the soundness of his views in saying:

"From the sportsman's point of view and from the undergraduate points of view, training in keenness and self reliance, the intervention of a coach in a game in any form is bad."

Dr. Alexander Melickoff, president of Amherst College, said:

"I would go much further than Mr. Mendel on the question of coaching from the sidelines, but so far as he goes I am heartily in sympathy with him."

EXCERPTS FROM HOOVER'S BOOK, "AMERICAN INDIVIDUALISM"

New York, Dec. 10.—Americans can make sure of progress along the road to human perfection by preserving and stimulating their initiative and glorifying service as a part of the national character, says Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, in his book summarizing "American Individualism," just off the press.

Experience in the back wash and misery of the war, he says, has strengthened his faith in American individualism, for America has been steadily developing the ideals that constitute progressive individualism.

"Americans," he writes, "are not fooled into the pretense that all men are equal in ability, character, intelligence and ambition. That was part of the claptrap of the French revolution."

"If democracy is to secure its authorities in morals, religion and state-manship, it must stimulate leadership for its own masses."
